WILLIAM C. OSBORN, CIVIC LEADER, DEAD

1/4/51
Ex-President of Metropolitan Museum of Art Also Headed
Children's Aid Society

LAWYER HERE FOR 61 YEARS

Was a Founder of the Citizens
Budget Commission in 1932
—Served With Railroads

William Church Osborn, for many years one of the leading civic benefactors of this city and former president of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, died yesterday afternoon in his home at 720 Park Avenue. His age was 88.

Mr. Osborn had been in failing health for two years because of the infirmities of his years. However, he was able to follow his custom of spending six months of the year at his country estate at Garrison, N. Y., and returned to his New York residence in November. His condition became critical five days ago.

His three sons, Frederick, Earl and William H. Osborn, and a daughter, Mrs. Aileen O. Webb, all of this city, were in New York when he died. Besides his children, he is survived by thirteen grandchildren and thirty-four great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Alice Dodge Osborn, Mr. Osborn's wife, died March 30, 1946, at the age of 81. She was a daughter of William E. Dodge, philanthropist.

Long With Children's Aid

While Mr. Osborn was widely known as an attorney, corporation director, civic leader and art collector, the job that he liked best was president of the Children's Aid Society, a post that he held from 1901 until 1949. He became a director of the society in 1890 and when he retired as president in 1949 the position of chairman of the board of directors was created for him. He held this post at his death.

Long one of the city's leading benefactors in the art world, Mr. Osborn was president of the Metropolitan Museum of Art from 1941 to 1947 and was a member of its board for forty-five years. He was one of the founders of the Citizens Budget Commission in 1932, was its chairman from 1935 to 1937 and became president on June 6, 1946.

Mr. Osborn was born in Chicago on Dec. 21, 1862. He was a son of the late William Henry Osborn, chairman of the board of directors of the Illinois Central Railroad and one of the exposers of the Tweed Ring here, and of the late Mrs. Virginia Reed Sturges Osborn. His brother was the late Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn, for twenty-five years president of the American Museum of Natural History.

He was graduated in 1883 from Princeton University with an A. B. degree. He received an LL. B. from Harvard in 1889 and since then had practiced in New York, specializing in corporation law.

WILLIAM CHURCH OSBORN
The New York Times Studio, 1947

CHAP

Senior Law Partner

At his death Mr. Osborn was senior partner in the law firm of Osborn, Fleming & Whittlesey, 20 Exchange Place. He was a director of the Phelps Dodge Corporation, the great copper mining, refining and selling organization, as well as of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad Company. He had been formerly a director of the Picacho Mining Corporation and the Tucson, Cornelia & Gila Bend Railroad Company. At one time he was a director and acting president of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad. He was also former chairman of the executive board of the Texas & Pacific Railroad.

Mr. Osborn served in the late Nineteen Twenties as chairman of the Fair Return Committee, whose members held $35,000,000 of securities in Northwestern railroads. In that capacity he told the Interstate Commerce Commission that the freight rate structure in the Northwest was "seriously unequal, uneven and unsafe for the carriers" and asked for higher rates.

In 1911 he was legal adviser to Gov. John A. Dix. Later he investigated for Mr. Dix various State departments. As an independent Democrat in 1894 and 1904, he ran unsuccessfully for the State Senate. He was a founder of the Democratic State League, which was active in fighting corrupt politics.

Sought Governorship

From 1914 to 1916 Mr. Osborn was chairman of the Democratic State Committee. In 1918 Franklin D. Roosevelt, then Assistant Secretary of the Navy, endorsed Mr. Osborn for the nomination for Governor. Samuel Seabury argued for Mr. Osborn at the Democratic State Conference, but in vain. Alfred E. Smith became the nominee and was elected. Mr. Smith and Mr. Osborn later became political allies.

Mr. Osborn was a life trustee of Princeton University. He received an honorary LL. D. degree from Princeton in 1942 and the same degree from Columbia University in 1943. In 1938 the National Institute of Social Sciences gave to him its gold medal for "distinguished services to humanity."

He was a member of the Century Association and the Downtown, University and City Clubs. He was senior warden of St. Philip's Protestant Episcopal Church, Garrison.

Successful Gas Well Drilling Is Good News To Bellefonte Family

On Thursday at 6:30 p. m. the 27th successful natural gas well in Clinton County's Leidy gas field was blown in and gauged at 13½ million cubic feet, thereby bringing good news to Bellefonte's Burgess Hugh M. Quigley and his two sisters who own 35 of the 85 acres in a tract leased by the Cabot Company of Boston.

It was especially welcome news to Burgess Quigley, Miss Henrietta Quigley, of New York City and Mrs. W. Fred Reynolds, Jr., of East Orange, N. J., because it was not until last August, some months after the rush to drill gas in Clinton county started, that they suddenly realized the importance of ownership of 35 acres of unseated mountain land in the Stewart Hill region at the head of Paddy Run, southeast of Cross Fork.

Their father, the late Centre County Judge Henry C. Quigley, in 1906, had purchased from the Clinton County Commissioners a tract of unseated mountain land. Five years later he sold most of the tract to the State. But it was not until the Cabot Co. sought drilling leases on that particular tract last August that his son and daughters began to appreciate the potential value of what they had previously considered to be nothing more than undeveloped mountain land of little or no value.

The striking of gas means that Burgess Quigley and his sisters will receive collectively thirty-five eighty-fifth or about 40 per cent of the royalties to be paid by the company when the gas is marketed, the usual custom being to market about half of the open-flow.

The remaining 60 per cent or 50 acres of the tract under lease is owned by several persons from Pittsburgh who hunt in that area. The well was drilled near the hunting camp.

W. W. KELLETT, 60, AUTOGIRO PIONEER

Founder and Head of Company
That Built First Wingless
Aircraft in U. S. Dies

7/22/51

PHILADELPHIA, July 22 (AP)—

W. Wallace Kellett, a pioneer in the development of the autogiro and helicopter, died today in Hahnemann Hospital after a brief illness. His age was 60.

A native of Boston, Mr. Kellett founded the Kellett Aircraft Corporation in 1929 and was its president. He had been active in aircraft manufacturing since 1919. His firm built the first wingless aircraft in America and the first fleet of rotary wing military aircraft for the Army.

In 1943 the Kellett company produced the first autogiro to be used for daily mail delivery. The craft carried mail from Philadelphia's Thirtieth Street post office to Central Airport, Camden, N. J.

More recently the company developed a twin-engined helicopter that carries ten passengers and a crew of two or a cargo of more than a ton. It was said to be the first of its kind.

During the second World War, the firm once had twelve plants in this area, employing more than 3,000 workers, principally in manufacturing parts of military aircraft.

A former officer of the Republic Aviation Corporation in Farmingdale, L. I., Mr. Kellett served as executive vice president, president and chairman of the company's board between 1938 and 1943. Two years later he resigned from Republic to devote full time to his own firm.

He became a member of the Pennsylvania Aviation Council in 1937 and was once governor of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America.

In recent years the Kellett Corporation has aided in development of a jet-propelled helicopter for the Air Force. The firm's main plant was moved from North Wales, Pa., to Central Airport, Camden, in 1949.

Mr. Kellett leaves his wife, Virginia F.; his mother, Mrs. Joseph T. Pearson of Chestnut Hill, and a brother, Roderick G. Kellett of Villanova.

John Walter Cross of 960 Fifth Avenue, one of the country's leading architects, whose firm, Cross & Cross, designed some of New York's most important buildings, died yesterday of a heart attack in Hot Springs, Va., after a long illness, at the age of 73.

Mr. Cross was born in South Orange, N. J., a son of Richard J. and Matilda Redmond Cross. After receiving an A. B. degree from Yale in 1900, he spent two years at the Columbia School of Mines, and then decided to make architecture his profession. Among the New York buildings designed by the firm during the thirty-five years of its existence were those of Tiffany & Co., City Bank Farmers Trust Company, Radio Corporation of America, Barclay Hotel, Stone & Webster, Aetna Life Insurance Company, Federal Office Building and the Church of Notre Dame. He designed the National Memorial to Walter Camp, the monumental gateway at the entrance to the Yale Bowl.

Owing to failing health, Mr. Cross retired for four years beginning in 1942. On the return of his son, H. Page Cross, from war service in the Pacific, the firm of Cross & Son, 505 Park Avenue, was organized and Mr. Cross was active in it until his death.

F. G. CAFFEY DIES; RETIRED JURIST, 82

Formerly U. S. District Court
Judge Here 8 Years—Wrote
170,000-Word Opinion

Francis Gordon Caffey, formerly for eight years a judge of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, died yesterday in his home at Verbena, Ala., after an illness of several months, at the age of 82. He retired in 1947. While here, he had lived at the Royalton Hotel.

Judge Caffey, as a United States Attorney during the first World War and as a Federal judge during the second, had roles in many events of national importance. During the years which followed the financial crash of 1929, in the last days of prohibition and during the depression he presided at many trials of a sensational and significant nature.

Ground through his mill were phases of the Charles V. Bob fraud case of 1935, the Belle Livingston prohibition case of 1931, the Joseph W. Harriman bank defalcation case of 1934, the Astor suit for recovery of $10,000,000 in taxes, espionage cases, milk wars and the ordinary contentions of people and commerce.

A slight man, white-haired in his later years, aloof and quietly methodical, Judge Caffey went on the bench on May 7, 1929, with the background of a Government solicitor and prosecutor and from a successful private practice. He was appointed a judge of the Southern District of New York first by President Coolidge in May, 1928, but the Senate adjourned without confirming the appointment and he was named later by President Hoover.

Dictated 170,000-Word Opinion

Legal circles long will remember the feat Judge Caffey performed when he dictated from the bench a 170,000-word opinion in the Aluminum Company of America monopoly case. The trial started on June 1, 1938, and lasted more than two years, building up a printed record of 58,000 pages filling forty-two volumes—the largest court record in the English language.

Estimating that it would take two years to write an opinion, Judge Caffey, at the age of almost 72, had begun his dictation on Oct. 1, 1940. Late on the afternoon of Oct. 10 he finished his opinion, which cleared Alcoa of the charges of monopoly.

In winding up his opinion, Judge Caffey declared there was "no warrant in fact or in law for dissolving or enjoining Alcoa," but recognizing his responsibility, he added that it was "a great comfort" to know that the decision probably would be appealed, "although I think my decision is right."

The opinion was reversed by a statutory court, which acted when a quorum of disinterested Supreme Court Justices could not be obtained. The higher court held that a monopoly had existed as late as the trial, but ruled that final judgment should be deferred until it could be seen what effect the disposition of Government aluminum plants after the war would have upon the monopoly. The case still was pending when Judge Caffey retired on Oct. 31, 1947.

FRANCIS G. CAFFEY

The New York Times Studio, 1941

Studied Law at Harvard

Born in Gordonsville, Ala., Judge Caffey received an A. M. degree from Howard College, Ala., in 1887; an A. B. from Harvard University in 1891 and an A. M. from Harvard in 1892. In 1892-94 he attended Harvard University Law School, and in the latter year he returned to Alabama to practice law at Montgomery.

He served as a lieutenant colonel in a Negro regiment in the Spanish-American War, and in 1902 came to New York to practice law with the late John C. Breckinridge.

From 1913 to 1917 Judge Caffey was solicitor for the Department of Agriculture and during the next four years was United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York. In the latter post he prosecuted many German spies and enemy aliens, including Carl Schimmel, Capt. Otto Wolpert, Frederico Stallforth, a German-Mexican banker, and Capt. Franze Rintelen.

Upon his return to civil life in 1921, Judge Caffey became a member of the firm of Bouvier, Caffey & Beale, and during the next few years was receiver in many large bankruptcies, including those of the Ward Line, the Hudson Navigation Company and Allan A. Ryan, spectacular Wall Street operator, who failed in 1922 for $18,000,000.

During the second World War Judge Caffey handled many cases involving saboteurs and violators of wartime regulations. Among the more celebrated of these was the case of Dr. Abraham Freitag, Brooklyn physician, whom Judge Caffey sentenced to three years in prison and fined $100,000 for the diversion of 3,000,000 yards of bandage material.

SHERMAN RETAINS INDOOR POLO POST

New Yorker Chosen for Sixth Term—Devereux, Lennon,
Nicholls Re-elected

George C. Sherman Jr. of New York was unanimously re-elected president of the Indoor Polo Association of America at the annual meeting held at the Racquet and Tennis Club. Delegates attending the meeting represented leading clubs in Chicago, Detroit, Ohio, New England and the metropolitan area.

Sherman, an active player himself and a member of the board of governors of the United States Polo Association, was re-elected for the sixth term, it was revealed yesterday. Other officers re-elected were Walter B. Devereux, executive vice president; Joseph O. Lennon, honorary chairman; William H. Nicholls and Lyman T. Whitehead Jr., vice presidents; Paul Miller, secretary, and Joseph Olmstead, treasurer.

Maj. Gen. George F. Ferry of Chicago was named a vice president and Philip H. Brady became a new member of the executive committee. Brady is chairman of the Squadron A Polo Club, which will again conduct polo at the Squadron A Armory, Madison Avenue and Ninety-fourth Street, this season.

Tournament plans for the 1952 national championships were discussed at the meeting. Also, the date for the final of the Intercollegiate championship finals was set for Saturday night, March 8. Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Cornell were represented at the meeting. It is expected that all those colleges, as well as New Mexico Military Institute, Georgetown, the University of Miami and possibly Stanford University will compete in the 1952 collegiate indoor title play.

Inter-City League matches are being planned for this season between New York and Mid-Western trios. Play will start at Squadron A next month.

Polo at Squadron A is considered a partial victory for the silk-stocking saddle-cinchers who have been waging a losing battle for the survival of their horses against a mechanical-minded military.

Mr. Milburn, one of polo's greats, already has started bicycle polo rolling in a couple of test schools, in the hope that boys of moderate income families will learn the rudiments of a game usually confined to sons of the rich and give regular polo some badly needed new blood.

And that brings up lovely Isabelle Haskell, one of society's top equestrienne's who still is blushing over the reason she has to sit on the sidelines for this year's National Horse Show.

Dean Christian Gauss of Princeton Falls Dead in Pennsylvania Station

Dr. Christian Gauss, dean emeritus of Princeton University and one of the foremost exponents of academic freedom, collapsed and died shortly before 7 P. M. yesterday in Pennsylvania Station. The 73-year-old educator fell to the floor of the concourse and was dead before medical aid could reach him.

He had been carrying a brief case and from its contents and papers on his person his identity first was established. A daughter-in-law, Mrs. Christian Gauss Jr. of New Canaan, Conn., confirmed the identification at the West Thirtieth Street police station.

Dr. Gauss served as dean of the college of Princeton University from 1925 to 1945. He was one of a group of preceptors brought to Princeton in 1905 by Woodrow Wilson. From his arrival to 1907, Dr. Gauss was assistant professor of Romance Languages. He then became Professor of Modern Languages and from 1913 to 1936 was chairman of the Modern Language Department. He resumed that post in 1943.

the Princeton University National Alumni Association.

A good-humored man, celebrated for his wit, wisdom and oratory, he was nevertheless a stern disciplinarian. To offending students he meted out punishments which he declared "hurt me more than they do you." He enjoyed tremendous popularity on the campus.

Dr. Gauss' interests extended far beyond academic halls. He strongly condemned the House Committee on Un-American Activities and was a signatory to a letter to Congress urging abolition of the investigating body. In 1940 he was one of a group of 500 scientists who signed a petition urging the United States to remain neutral in World War II, but quickly repudiated the petition. He took sides on many other disputed subjects.

Dr. Gauss believed strongly that excessive nationalism was the principal barrier to international accord, and he asked for the denationalization of education and the use of "moral education." He criticized excessive emphasis on courses in American history, literature and civilization.

At Princeton he favored student control of campus activities and served in 1939 as chairman of the university's council on athletics. He was described in a college song: "Here's to Gauss, called Chris-ti-an, a most encyclopedic man."

The song was inspired by the wide variety of his fields of knowledge. Although he taught modern French literature, he was well versed in the Latin, Greek, English, Italian and German literature.

Born in Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 2, 1878, he received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Michigan in 1898. He continued his education at other universities and was the recipient of numerous degrees.

He had served as president of the American Committee for the Baltic University in Exile, president of the New Jersey World Federalists and had been a member of the executive committee of the National Committee for Democracy and Intellectual Freedom.

Dr. Gauss also was chairman of the American Association for a Democratic Germany, and a member of the National Committee of the American Civil Liberties Union, Modern Language Association.

In 1935, Dr. Gauss was decorated a Knight of the Legion of Honor of the French Republic. He was a member and past vice president of the Balzac Society of America. He was a member of Kappa Sigma and Phi Beta Kappa and had served as president of the Dante League of America from 1918 to 1920.

His clubs were the Princeton, Century and Nassau.

Dr. Gauss had served as literary editor for several publications. He also was the author of several books, including The German Emperor, Through College on Nothing a Year, Why We Went to War (a World War I study), Life in College, A Primer for Tomorrow, and had collaborated on several other books.

His home was at 24 Bayard Lane, Princeton, N. J.

Survivors include his widow, the former Alice Hussey; a son, Christian Gauss Jr., and three daughters, Mrs. Natalie G. Stephenson, Mrs. Hildegard G. Steimle and Mrs. Katherine G. Jackson.

MISS CANNON WED TO D. W. SIMMONS

Smith Alumna Who Studied in France Becomes Bride of Senior at Trinity

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Townsend Cannon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Townsend Laing Cannon of 1105 Park Avenue, to David Weston Simmons, son of Mrs. John O. Simmons of Bristol, Conn., and the late Professor Simmons of Syracuse University, took place here yesterday afternoon in the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Heavenly Rest.

The Rev. John E. Large performed the ceremony, which was followed by a reception in the Victorian Suite of the Carlyle.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, had her sister, Miss Ann Noel Cannon, as maid of honor. The other attendants were Mrs. Hugh L. Smith Jr., a sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Robert B. Denison and the Misses Evelyn R. Keller and Martha E. Rusk.

Mr. Smith was best man. The ushers were Robert F. Farrell, S. Barry Jennings Jr., Mr. Denison and Thomas Head 3d.

Upon their return from a wedding trip, the couple will reside in Windsor, Conn.

An alumna of Smith College, the bride studied also in France at the Universite de Grenoble, Ecole du Louvre and the Sorobonne. She made her debut here in 1948.

Her husband was graduated from the Mount Hermon (Mass.) School and is a member of the graduating class at Trinity College.

for Bob Neely Jr. at Armando's, Mickey said, "Sorry, Bob. If I have to spend $20 it's going to be on girls, not boys." . . . Neatest father-and-daughter act seen this season, when pretty postdeb Cornelia (Fifi) Ford's petticoat unexpectedly dropped around her ankles during a recent ball at the Carlyle. Fifi stepped nonchalantly out of same, her father reached down, scooped it up, folded it quickly and placed it in his tux pocket. Neither of them lost a step or a downbeat. . . . Inside story on Margaret Emerson's lease of Gurnee Munn's Palm Beach villa this season is that the aristocratic-looking heiress to Bromo Seltzer millions expected her daughter, Mimi Baker Alexander, America's first number one glamour deb, to share it with her and Mimi's two children by Henry J. (Bob) Topping. Mrs. Emerson's photogenic daughter decided against leaving her military husband, Gen. Edward Alexander, in Turkey while she vacationed luxuriously in a millionaire's playground. It takes us back to the day Mimi removed all of her fabulous jewelry just before her wedding to Gen. Alexander because he felt such expensive baubles had no place in the life of a general's wife.
